Work Has Changed

Build Skills That Drive Success
Globalized business models, the proliferation of information, and the emergence of new technology are driving complexity in the market. Since we cannot control our unpredictable environments, we must focus on what we can control: how we respond. Project leaders need to master how to think and lead differently across the four domains that drive project work – strategy, work, people, and self – for a world that is ever-changing.

Project leaders who strive to develop these skills, tools, and mindset are crucial in helping organizations meet strategic goals.

Develop Project Leadership Skills in a Way That Works
Experience the best in modern learning, designed for today’s project-driven economy and a learner’s busy world. The Strategy Execution Hub is an online learning platform that gives users access to Strategy Execution’s complete library of courses, in addition to practical learning experiences designed with the user’s experience at the forefront.

Within the platform, you can easily access answers to specific project questions, utilize tools to help reinforce concepts, and apply useful tools, templates, and guides to get your job done in real time. Through the Hub, you can earn a certificate from our partner Duke Corporate Education or accumulate the PDUs you need to maintain your PMP® certification.

Your All-In-One Training Solution
The Hub is where all things project training clearly and conveniently connect.

- Right from the start, a learner can take our SELF Assessment, built to identify potential skill gaps or areas of opportunity for learning – alleviating the stress and challenge of knowing where to start
- Expertly-designed eLearning journeys are curated, transformative content paths designed to guide you through behavior change that positively impacts work by using an adaptive mindset prepared for complexity and change
- Jobs-to-be-done teachings are made of microlearning items built to address the specific pain points and challenges professionals struggle with when managing projects
- Have a specific question you need answered? Our content is broken down in various ways to help you quickly search for short-form learning modules, toolkits, templates, and other resources
- Digital Coaching means you’ll receive insights and analytics to measure learning progress, in addition to specific and automated guidance around how best to apply learning in your role
